

Live into the full Pepperdine experience.

Living in campus housing offers:

- An engaging and enriching community experience for graduate students, allowing them to build their future professional network.
- Convenient access to Pepperdine academic buildings, gyms, athletic facilities, dining services, and visual and performing arts events.
- Resident and Spiritual Life Advisors to guide and support students during their time living at Pepperdine.

GRADUATE STUDENT HOUSING

Across the street from the Caruso School of Law, the George Page Residential Complex provides quick access to classes and the Jerene Appleby Harnish Law Library. Built in 1996, the complex is organized in four blocks of apartments situated around a grassy courtyard. All residents have access to a common area that contains sofas, tables and chairs, a television, restrooms, a large patio area with BBQs, and mailboxes. Law students reside in apartments located in the recently renovated F and G blocks. Each apartment contains:

- Four single-occupancy bedrooms furnished with an extra-long full bed, dresser, nightstand, desk, and chair.
- A kitchen equipped with a gas stovetop and oven, refrigerator, sink with disposal, and dishwasher.
- A living room furnished with a couch, coffee table, end table, dining table, chairs, and a flat-screen television.
- An apartment bathroom containing two sinks, one shower, and one toilet.

ATHLETIC AND GYM FACILITIES

The Caruso School of Law provides a gym in the academic building for students to use. Additionally, the Firestone Fieldhouse Weight Center conveniently offers a variety of exercise equipment for residents. Residents also have access to an Olympic-size pool, tennis courts, basketball courts, a track, a soccer field, and group fitness classes.

2019-2020 MEAL PLAN RATES

Meal plans provide easy on-campus access to meals, snacks, and beverages. With a campus meal plan, you avoid paying tax. Three meal plans are designed for residents in apartments with kitchens and are priced as follows:

- $280/semester*
- $560/semester*
- $870/semester*

During weekdays, the Caruso School of Law Cafe offers a variety of hot meals, made-to-order sandwiches, prepared foods, and drinks. Student meal plans can also be used in the fresh-food vending machines, accessible anytime to law students.
