TEACHING EXPERIENCE

PEPPERDINE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

Professor of Law, August 2008 to the present

Tenured Associate Professor, since August 2006.

Associate Professor of Law, August 2001- July 2008

Teaching: I currently teach upper division courses in California Evidence, Trial Practice, Constitutional Law and Comparative AntiDiscrimination law. In past years, I have designed new courses entitled Community Outreach: Youth Mentoring in Law, and Current Issues: Race Ethnicity, Diversity and Inclusion. I have also taught a Race and the Law Seminar, Pre-Trial litigation, and Constitutional Structure, as well as first year courses in Criminal Law and Constitutional Law.

Service: I served as the faculty advisor to the Black Law Students' Association for more than a decade, as well as faculty advisor to the Women's Legal Association. I also co-chaired the University Diversity Council from 2017-2019. I concluded my three-year term as Chair of the Self-Study and Reaccreditation Committee in 2017. I have served on the Admissions and Financial Aid Committee, the Faculty Career Development Committee, the Faculty Resources Committee, including as Vice Chair. In the fall of 2012, I served on the Faculty Appointments Committee, as well as on the Clinical Task Force.

Before that, I served for two years as Chair of the Curriculum Committee, and a member of the University Academic Council, and the University Diversity Council. I served for five years as an active member of the Law School's Academic Standards Committee, and was an active member of the Pepperdine University Faculty of Color Council for several years. I was appointed to serve on the Dean Search Committee for the 2003-04 year, as well as the University's Institutional Review Board for human subject research. I also served as the faculty advisor to the South Asian Law Students' Association for one year. In addition, in the spring of 2004, I coached the mock trial team for the National Black Law Student's Association Thurgood Marshall Mock Trial Competition, which won the Regional and National titles in 2004 and the regional title for 2005 and 2006. I was the recipient of Summer Research Grants each summer from 2002 through 2013 and was awarded a Rick Caruso Fellowship for the fall 2003 semester and the spring 2009 semester.

In addition, I have co-authored two op-ed pieces. The first was published in the Harvard Crimson on June 2, 2009, entitled "An Open Letter to President Faust and the Harvard Community." It set forth specific strategies to help low income students make the most of their Harvard experience through expanded academic, financial and counseling support services. The second is entitled Lethal Injustice, and was published in the Sacramento Bee on July 2, 2009. It discusses the crisis of accountability in the death penalty decision-making process.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT LOS ANGELES SCHOOL OF LAW

Lecturer in Law, July, 1995 – June, 2001

Lawyering Skills. After two years of teaching the standard "Lawyering Skills" course, which includes interviewing skills, legal research and writing, counseling, fact investigation, depositions, motion practice, and trial advocacy, I created the Public Interest version of the course for the program in Public Interest Law and Policy. The "Lawyering Skills for Public Interest Program Students" course emphasizes the special skills and issues that public interest lawyers are more likely to employ and encounter in practice. The fall semester focuses on housing-related problems (discrimination and landlord-tenant relations) while the spring semester addresses domestic violence and child abuse.

Co-Teaching. I also have co-taught the following courses: Local Economic Development; Community Outreach, Education and Organizing; Public Policy Advocacy; Depositions and Discovery; Simulated Trial Advocacy (four semesters); and Live Client Trial Advocacy, supervising students in administrative hearings and Superior Court (three semesters), including asylum issues in immigration court.

Committees. I was an active member of the Public Interest Committee, which created and now administers the program in Public Interest Law and Policy. My work with the Public Interest Committee included extensive annual reviews of applications for admission and interviews of candidates' references. I also have served on the Externship Committee.

Advising. I have served as a Faculty Advisor to the Black Law Students' Association, the National Blackletter Law Journal, and for student organizations promoting affirmative action. I also have advised students working on law review comments and other directed research projects.

Other Service. I have taught in the UCLA Law School Summer Program for four years, spending one week working with small groups of students from non-traditional or disadvantaged backgrounds, to provide some advance preparation in legal writing and analysis. In addition, I have taught classes to non-law students, through the Riordan Program at the UCLA Anderson School of Business, and the Law Fellows Early Academic Outreach Program for disadvantaged UCLA undergraduate students interested in attending law school.
