

THOMAS J. STIPANOWICH
William H. Webster Chair in Dispute Resolution
Professor of Law,
Pepperdine University School of Law
Academic Director, Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution

PRESENT POSITION (Since June, 2006)

William H. Webster Chair in Dispute Resolution
Professor of Law, Pepperdine University School of Law
Academic Director, Straus Institute for Dispute Resolution

Teaching and training, scholarship and leadership of the one of the world's leading educational programs in the field of dispute resolution. For eleven of the last twelve years, the Straus Institute at Pepperdine was rated as the leading law school dispute resolution program in the United States in the U.S. NEWS GUIDE TO GRADUATE SCHOOLS. Each year the Institute offers three academic programs (including an LL.M. and Masters in Dispute Resolution) with three dozen courses and more than four hundred enrollees. In addition to providing vision and leadership for the Institute, Professor Stipanowich currently teaches courses on negotiation, arbitration practice, international commercial arbitration, international dispute resolution, contracts and remedies, and leadership and conflict, and is an internationally known speaker and trainer. He engages in scholarship on commercial and consumer arbitration; the interplay of adjudicative/arbitral and mediation/conciliative functions; empirical research on practices and perspectives of leading arbitrators and mediators, and on conflict management among Fortune 1,000 corporations and other companies; the evolution of Abraham Lincoln as an effective manager of conflict; and actor-studio conflict in the Hollywood film industry.

PRIOR POSITIONS

President & CEO, International Institute for Conflict Prevention and Resolution (CPR Institute) (2001-2006)

Leadership of international non-profit coalition of corporate counsel, senior attorneys, judges and scholars founded in 1979 as the Center for Public Resources. The mission of the Institute is to spearhead innovation and promote excellence in public and private dispute resolution, and to serve as a primary multinational resource for avoidance, management and resolution of business-related disputes. See www.cpradr.org Responsibilities included working with The Institute's Board of Directors and Executive (Advisory) Committee to provide strategic guidance for The Institute; establishing and guiding the implementation of CPR's mission by staff, consultants, and hundreds of members of the CPR coalition; achieving and managing a $3 million budget; serving as The Institute's primary spokesperson; facilitating the movement of the organization into a new and larger headquarters, personally facilitating the resolution of conflict by helping to bring complex disputes to the negotiating table; writing books, law review articles and other articles; consulting and training corporate legal departments, law firms and other organizations on conflict management systems design, training and evaluation.

William L. Matthews Professor of Law (1995-2001); Alumni Professor of Law, University of Kentucky College of Law, Lexington, Kentucky (1991-1995); Associate Professor of Law (1987-90); Assistant Professor of Law (1984-1987)

Teaching and research focused on commercial arbitration and alternative dispute resolution, advanced mediation, contracts, commercial law, construction law, legal history and property.

Of Counsel, Stites & Harbison, Lexington, Kentucky (1988-2001)

Commercial and construction practice emphasizing arbitration and mediation, including work as a neutral.

Smith, Currie & Hancock, Atlanta, Georgia (1980-84)

Civil litigation-oriented practice with nation's largest construction and government contracts specialty firm.

OTHER PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES, RECOGNITION

James F. Henry Award. (February 2016) The award recognizes “outstanding achievement by individuals for distinguished, sustained contributions to the field of dispute resolution.” Candidates for the award are evaluated for “leadership, innovation and sustaining commitment to the field.” Previous awardees include Senator George Mitchell; Lord Woolf of Barnes, former Lord Chief Justice of England; Professor Nancy Rogers, Reporter for the Uniform Mediation Act; famed mediator and September 11 Victims Fund Special Master Kenneth Feinberg; and former Attorney General Janet Reno. A letter of nomination said:

“An unblinking commentator on both bad and good trends, Professor Stipanowich is a virtual moderator, guiding and shaping the ongoing ‘multilogue’ among corporations, academics, governments and neutrals. He has changed the language of ADR. The Henry Award by design means to reward not just accomplishment, but ongoing innovation made real by activity. No one in the field is more active, to greater effect, than Tom Stipanowich.”
